SKIPPERS STILL BLAMING EACH OTHER

[By Latest Mail]

MONTREAL—Now that the first burst of excitement and grief at the loss of life through the sinking of the C. P. R. steamship Empress of Ireland has partially spent itself, and the general public is settling down to await the government enquiry before giving judgment as to the responsibility for the frightful accident, the controversy between the commanders of the two vessels involved is looming large on the horizon. Doubtless each of them feels badly over the event itself, but at present it seems to be a case of "blaming the other fellow" and shifting the blame as far as possible.

Captain Kendall, of the lost ship, tells the coroner at Rimouski that the captain of the collier Storstad might have prevented loss of life if he had kept the Storstad's nose in the gap she made in the Empress' side. Captain Anderson, of the Storstad, in an interview in Montreal, says he did try to do this, but the Empress "was going at good speed ahead" and away in such a manner that the bow of the Storstad was forced out of the hole.

Captain Kendall's evidence in brief is to the effect that the captain of the Storstad was at fault, first in proceeding ahead when the Empress of Ireland had signalled that she was "under way," but is stopped and has no way, on her," and second, in backing from the gap she had made in the Empress' side. Captain Kendall is backed up by his chief engineer, William Sampson and by James Rankin, a marine engineer.

The employment of persons under 16 years old is controlled by special laws in Germany.

DOLLAR COMPANY

ORDERS NEW LINER

SHANGHAI—Harold Dollar will be the name of the new off-shore steamer which the Robert Dollar Steamship Company of San Francisco has made arrangements to build on the Clyde for service in the lumber carrying trade from ports on this coast.

She will be larger than the Robert Dollar, at present the largest of that fleet, and she will have capacity for handling more than 5,000,000 feet of lumber.

The fleet of the Dollar Line is at present composed of the steamships Robert Dollar, Bessie Dollar, W. S. Dollar, Stanley Dollar, Melville Dollar, Hazel Dollar, Grace Dollar and Mackinaw.

It is the intention of the Dollar Line to use several of these steamships in transporting the greater part of 24,000,000 feet of lumber from Victoria and Vancouver Island, to be used in the construction of the Toronto harbor works, and the first of these consignments will go via Panama canal immediately after the great waterway is thrown open to ocean traffic. The steamers of the Robert Dollar line are operated principally in the lumber carrying trade, and the more modern of the fleet are especially equipped for this purpose.

Upon the completion of the Harold Dollar she will be the flagship of the fleet. Captain Robert Dollar says the proposed vessel will be built at a cost of about $280,000.

It turned out at San Francisco or any other American yards he declared that the vessel would cost more than $600,000.

The vast difference in favor of the builders in Scotland or England he holds to be attributable mostly to the higher wages paid mechanics on this continent.

The Harold Dollar will be operated under British registry, with Victoria as her home port, as is the case with other vessels of the fleet.

Formerly the company owned a coaster known as the Harold Dollar, but over a year ago she was sold and the name changed to Greywood.

The much talked of French steamship line between Saigon, Haiphong and Manila will soon be a reality, the first of the French steamers, the Phuen, being due at the Philippine port about July. The new line is the Compagnie d'Extreme Orient, a French company of 4,000,000 francs capital, with headquarters at Paris.

At first there will be but one vessel on the run and a monthly service will be maintained during the rice season. Later it is believed that more vessels will be added. This will be the first time in many months that a vessel flying the tri-color of France has dropped anchor in Manila bay, 4m.

WIVES OF MEXICO'S TOMMY ATKINES

The women who accompany the Mexican army, writes Fritz Arno, von de. Ellen in Harper's Weekly, are generally of the Indian type, totally uneducated, unspeakably dirty, and apparently quite content to undergo physical hardship for the sake of being with their masters. I use the word masters advisedly, for it accurately expresses the relationship of Mexican women to Mexican men. The loyalty of the soldier's wife is more akin to that of a dog to its master than to that of an intelligent woman to her mate. She expects to do the hard work and to be cuffed about for her pains. Her bravery (or frequently she follows her husband into battle) is the bravery of stupidity that does not recognize danger. Popular superstition, abroad at least, pictures the Mexican woman as a nervous, passionate, a charmer with a dagger hidden in her corsage. Nothing could be further from the truth, as expressed by the inmates of hovel, by the shiftless creatures walking the streets and standing in the shadows of a band in the plaza to entertain them, and by the servants of the soldiers who go to war. Their features are heavy, their eyes expressionless, and seldom do they give any indication of the imagination without which dread of impending danger does not exist. They are not fighting for a cause. Not one in twenty-five can give even the most fragmentary explanation of the rebellion, and this applies to the men as well as to the women.

Initial steps have been taken to organize the school teachers of Oahu under the auspices of the Ohio State Federation of Labor.

A recent German census disclosed the fact that nearly 500 women are employed as tilers and roofers in that country.
